A pestilence is recorded as raging in Babylonia, AD 40, in Italy, AD 66, Both of these took place before the destruction of Jerusalem in 70 AD.

The 'Black Death' (the bubonic plague) of the 14th Century wiped out the majority of the population of Europe; resulting in the deaths of an estimated 75 to 200 million people.

"One-fourth of the population of the civilized world perished, the deaths in Europe alone reaching 25,000,000."

The great pestilence of 1918 was the Spanish flu which wiped out more people in the United States than our nation lost in World War I.

It infected an estimated 500 million people worldwide about one-third of the planet's population and killed an estimated 20 million to 75 million victims, including some 675,000 Americans.
